

I believe one of my best qualities is being a listening ear and trying to give the most positive advice when it's needed. This is often something I need from family members and friends and they always listen and give the best advice they can and I always make sure that I can do the same for them. I truly love listening to whatever someone has to tell me because we never know what someone may be going through and a listening ear can always turn a situation around. Being a young adult, I understand that sometimes we go to people who are not a part of our family to feel less judgment and that is why I always express to my friends that they can count on me any time.

Gun violence today in America is a very common recurrence almost every day. Some students may show signs of wanting to commit mass murders and other may not. But, for those who do show those signs I would want to be a listening ear to find out why they may feel that way, give them the best advice I can and recommend to them and their family professional help.
