

If I could live my life fighting for one cause it would be fighting for equality. A lot of problems in our world have come from the lack of equality and systemic racism. As people of color, we do not receive the same treatment, opportunities, education, and assistance as other racial communities. In our predominantly black communities the education system does not receive enough funding to properly educate our youth and financially assist those who would like to attend college. In the healthcare world there is a lack of equality in the way people of color are treated and also the lack of research there is to effectively treat people of color. Most of the medical research is based on the caucasian race even though there has been numerous studies that show different racial groups develop or respond differently to certain things. As a person of color we have to work 10 times harder just to show that we are just as good to even begin to receive equal treatment. Many challenges we face today are rooted from systemic racism and inequality and if we can fix that we could work towards becoming a better society.

I am confirming my interview for June 20th at 5:40 pm.
